

ME, ME, ME... AND THE OTHERS IO, IO, IO... E GLI ALTRI

A well-know journalist and writer decides to carry out a survey into human egoism. While the material takes form in the writer's mind, the accusation against others which he has prepared changes into a sort of confession in his subconscious. Memories, regrets, encounters and his many self-discoveries lead him to take a look at himself. At the end, he will finally understand that only by living for others, does one truly feel alive and that life is a gift to share and not be pillaged from others.
